STRUCTURE OF THE MODEL

1. Speaker's Presentation

- An expert on the topic gives a complete explanation of it to the delegates.
- Delegates may ask their final questions on the topic to the speaker in Spanish independently of the committee.
- However, remember to clarify your doubts and research your topic before MUNIO, as there is not much time for this part.

2. Speaker's List

Session in which delegates read their position papers and other delegates can ask them questions about them.

3. First Moderated Caucus.

There are several types of "Moderated Caucus" during this model. In the first one, position papers are debated.

4. Next Moderated Caucus.

To discuss and find possible solutions, form alliances, debate controversy points, and for any other reason the Chair believes appropriate.

5. First Unmoderated Caucus.

To redact Working Papers.

6. Informal Voting Process.

To choose a Working Paper as the basis for the Resolution Paper.

7. Third Moderated Caucus.

To discuss Working Papers and modify ideas to redact the Resolution Paper.

8. Second Unmoderated Caucus.

To redact the Resolution Paper.

9. Formal Voting Process.

To approve the resolution within the committee.

10. Approval of the Resolution.

Depending on the committee, the delegates will go to another committee or receive the High Command, and in the case of the main bodies they will receive other delegates for the Approval of their Resolution Paper.

Position Paper

The Position Paper is the document that explains the position of the delegation in the debate. This document must be approximately 1 minute and 45 seconds long, during which the delegate can address context information of the delegation in the topic, the current situation, and proposed solutions. The Position Paper will be read during the speaker's list, after the opening of the first session and before any debate.

Structure

- Information about the document:
- Full name of the committee.
- Topic.
- Full name of the represented delegation.
- Full name of the delegate.
- Official flag (if it is a country) and official logo of the committee.

- Introduction:
- Formal greetings in a short paragraph.
- Brief context of the topic and its relationship to the delegation.

- Development:
- Current situation and outlook of the delegation.
- Brief current global situation and overview.
- Listed proposals to address the topic under discussion.

- Conclusion:
- Farewell and acknowledgements for the attention.
- Representative quote/motto of the delegation (optional).

Notes

Copies: Delegations must bring two printed copies of their Position Paper(s), as they will need a physical copy to read it, and the Chair will request a color copy without annotations before the reading.

Recommendations: Stick to the key points of the topic, maintain formal, concise and well-explained language, avoid making it repetitive, ambiguous or difficult to understand and always know your topic well.

Example

The following document is an example of a Position Paper used in the third edition of INTERMUN.

Committee: General Assembly
Topic: Global coordination to mitigate the consequences of migration
Country: People's Republic of Bangladesh
Delegate: Luisa Vanessa Villebardet Jimenez

ভ বিকাল (subah bikala), honorable delegates and distinguished members of the chair. On behalf of president Shahabuddin Chuppu, this delegation is open to generate a global coordination to mitigate the consequences of migration

Migration has proven to be a key driver of economic growth in many nations; Migrants, typically young and of working age, bring their skills, knowledge, and energy to the labor market. However, having a large population puts too much pressure on natural resources, amenities and services, and also this issue has increased problems such as unhygienic conditions, crime, pollution, among others.

Bangladesh represents the sixth-largest migrant sending country in the world, with more than 7.4 million of the citizens residing overseas. Even after a decade of rapid economic development, migration remains a pillar of the economy in the country, thanks in large part to remittances sent home from citizens abroad, which have topped $20 billion annually for the past three years. Simultaneously the country is experiencing rapid urbanisation and internal migration, while it also plays host to one of the largest refugee populations in the world.

In order to address this issue, the delegation of Bangladesh would like to propose the following solutions:

- Promote stability, education and employment opportunities to reduce the drivers of forced migration.
- Collect credible data, like cross border movements, labor markets and internal displacement to reach international agreements on migration.
- Follow international conventions, like The Los Angeles Declaration, that promises targeted funding to support efforts in other countries.

Delegates, this delegation is open to discuss several solutions, as the resolutions for this topic could make a positive impact in the lives of humanity, with the right international cooperation.

Working Paper

In the Working Paper, delegates redact the agreed proposals after addressing the most important aspects of the topic during the debate. According to each delegation's position in the debate, two or more blocks will be formed and each will redact its own Working Paper. This document must include sponsors and signatories, the sponsors will be those who finance the solutions with their resources (economical, infrastructural, human, etc.).

Structure

- Block (A1/A2).
- Full name of the committee.
- Topic.
- Official names of sponsoring countries in alphabetical order.
- Official names of the signatory countries in alphabetical order.

Text

- Introduction to the topic.
- Solutions proposed by the block
  - Listed and divided into short, medium and long term .
- Conclusions

Notes

The Working Paper must contain viable and possible solutions to be approved. All members of the block must be included in the document, regardless of whether they are sponsors or signatories.

Example

The following document is an example of a Working Paper used in the third edition of INTERMUN.

Working Paper A1

Block: A1
Committee: United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and The Empowerment of Women.
Topic: Women's Exploitation in the Textile Industry
Sponsor Countries: Federal Republic of Germany; French Republic; United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland; United States of America.
Signatory Countries: Islamic Republic of Pakistan; People's Republic of Bangladesh, Republic of India; Russian Federation.

Alarmed by the fact that women are mostly seen as vulnerable within the textile industry in the meanings of exploitation. The Block A1 expresses deep concerns and is willing to take action in this problem.

Observing that it is a complex issue where women, despite gaining economic independence, often face negative factors. Moreover, women in this industry face a host of gender-based barriers, which are driven by multiple factors such as lack of resources, illiteracy, and societal norms.

Having studied the current state of women's situation in the textile industry, that is a worldwide problem in most nations. Women face critical conditions every day, including low salaries, long working hours, and concerning safety measures. The fashion industry generates approximately 1.53 trillion dollars, yet the people who manufacture clothing, most of whom are women, live in precarious conditions. Many are subjected to long working hours, sometimes exceeding 12 hours per day, six days a week, with minimal or no breaks, and earning wages that do not provide a decent standard of living. The role of women in the textile industry is extremely important since the industry employs around 94 million workers, and approximately 60% of them are women. Many reports indicate that 80% of those women who work in textile industries are exploited, and their rights are violated.

In many parts of the world, women's rights are being violated every day, and not necessarily because of the lack of laws that stipulate their rights, but because most of the time, these are not meaningfully implemented. Also, many workers do not have information regarding their rights or employer responsibilities under these laws; the workers cannot safely seek meaningful protection without a strong anti-retaliation protection, even if the workers were vaguely familiar with the law.

Many companies justify their actions by claiming they are providing employment. However, in reality, many of them violate women's labor rights. These violations include excessively long working hours and extremely low wages, leading to exploitation. Companies must respect labor rights and ensure decent working conditions for all people employed in the textile industry.

Draw attention to the developing countries and nations in need which are connected to this problem to raise awareness of it,

Fully aware of the situation of women in the textile industry and the challenges that the countries are facing to eradicate this problem,

Noting with regret the gender violence against women in developing countries that is currently happening, in abundance,

Recalling the countries that came together and worked together to find a solution to this problem, respecting and following the agreements established previously before carrying out our proposals,

Taking account that the delegations that belong to the A1 block agreed to eradicate violence in these countries, this block seeks solutions that can be carried out in all the countries,

Having considered and showing great interest in helping women in the textile industry, the included nations propose the following solutions:

Short-term solutions

1. Encourages the recognition of informative campaigns about worker's rights and employer responsibilities, so that the people who work in the textile factories can be informed about their rights as workers and conscious about the laws that protect them, as well as their employer's responsibilities within their workers;

2. Further requests textile employers accountable for the labor exploitation of women by enforcing the already existing laws created to protect women;

3. Further invites all companies to have a security certificate, which helps to stop or prevent this exploitation, and to assure this make monthly visits with qualified supervisors to these companies;

4. Encourages nations to place fines on the employer or company if an employee reports overtime, harassment, discrimination, or any offensive situation. Although specific fines can vary, non-compliance with labor regulations may lead to penalties;

Medium term solutions

1. Considers creating a joint monitoring and auditing system for global supply chains that would allow for transparent verification of working conditions in textile factories;

2. Encourages nations to participate in Organizations such as the Clean Clothes Campaign and Oxfam Intermón, which have reported these practices and advocate for better working conditions in the textile industry worldwide;

Long term solutions

1. Creates an organization that includes the majority of the nations that are located in South Asia and Middle East, with the goal of protecting women's right from exploitation in the region and that is supervised, leaded and financed by the Federal Republic of Germany, that is one of the the countries with more capacity regarding defense of women's rights. This organization will have meetings every 6 months to go over the progress and evaluate the success of the program;

2. Calls upon the creation of an international fund that would compensate workers who have been victims of labor exploitation, including unpaid wages, unpaid overtime, and violations of basic rights. Additionally, the fund would finance education and training programs to help workers access better-paying and safer jobs. This fund can be sponsored by major importer countries;

3. Declares accordingly the creation of a global platform in which pa companies are required to report annually on the working conditions of their employees, wages, and actions taken to prevent exploitation. This platform would be accessible to the United Nations and human rights organizations, allowing for international monitoring. Companies that fail to meet the established standards are proposed to be excluded from international trade agreements;

4. Encourages all the countries participating and other countries to raise awareness for programmes and accords stated by the countries to expand these accords to the developing countries and countries who connect with this problem in order to ensure the safety and security of the workers from the factories, providing medical treatment and rehabilitation services;

5. Further proclaims The Implementation of Independent Labor Rights Auditors by encouraging the creation of a network of international and independent auditors who conduct random, unannounced labor inspections in textile factories, both domestic and foreign.

In conclusion, as a committee, are willing to work together with the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women and other countries interested in order to ensure all women's working in textile industries their safety and security in their working spaces, as well as, raising awareness about their situations in this problem. This alliance is open to participation and any opinions to provide the necessary support to all the countries in search of a world where women can have a decent workspace. Thanks for the attention.

"Each time a woman stands up for herself, without knowing it possibly, without claiming it, she stands up for all women." Maya Angelou.

Resolution Paper

After the approval of the Working Paper, the delegates will redact the Resolution Paper, which will be a transcription of the winning block's document, to a more official format, adding certain elements that compose the document.

Structure

- Winning block (A1, A2).
- Full name of the committee.
- Topic.
- Official names of sponsoring countries in alphabetical order.
- Official names of the signatory countries in alphabetical order.

Text

- Introduction to the topic.
- Pre-ambulatory paragraphs.
  - Using the preambulatory clauses at the beginning of each one (in italics and bold), explaining different aspects of the topic.
  - They end with a semicolon (;), except for the last one, which ends with a period.
- Operational paragraphs (enumerated).
  - Using the operative clauses at the beginning (in italics and bold), explaining the different proposed solutions.
  - Divided into short, medium and long term.
  - They end with a semicolon (;), except for the last one, which ends with a period.
- Conclusions.

Notes

The Resolution Paper must contain viable solutions to be approved. All solutions must be well specified, avoiding being repetitive.

Example

The following document is an example of a Resolution Paper used in the third edition of INTERMUN.

Resolution Paper A2

Committee: Economic and Social Council.
Topic: The Fight Against Drug Traffic and its Effects on the Global Economy.
Sponsor countries: Dominion of Canada, French Republic, Kingdom of Spain, People's Republic of China, The Russian Federation, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America.
Signatory countries: Federative Republic of Brazil, Islamic Republic of Afghanistan, Jamaica, Plurinational State of Bolivia, Portuguese Republic, Republic of Colombia, Republic of Costa Rica, Republic of Ecuador, United Mexican States.

Greetings, fellow honorable members of the High Command, chair, and esteemed delegates. On behalf of the Economic and Social Council, it is with great honor that these delegations cordially greet all those present and express gratitude to the United Nations for the opportunity to take part in this session.

Drug trafficking can be understood as the practice of marketing or exchanging products that are legally defined as illegal. These products are primarily associated with the sale and distribution of psychotropic substances and narcotics, except for drugs that are legally recognized for medical or medicinal purposes. Drug trafficking is characterized by large-scale commercialization, representing a global scourge. Although countries have dealt heavy blows to this issue throughout history, it continues to persist and has evolved in more creative and bold ways.

Drug trafficking represents a serious problem that negatively impacts millions of lives. It has grown to become one of the most active and dynamic forms of criminal markets. These markets involve a variety of narcotics, including heroin, cocaine, cannabis, and synthetics like fentanyl and methamphetamine. The production and sale of these drugs, along with other forms of organized crime, account for an astonishing 1.5% of the global economy, generating an estimated $2.1 trillion in crime proceeds annually, according to the UNODC report on estimating illicit financial flows resulting from drug trafficking and other transnational organized crimes from October 2011.

Therefore, the Economic and Social Council,

Alarmed by the urgency of the situation involving the cartel-related violence in multiple countries;

Aware of problem of drug traffic remains as a global concern, that affects various countries worldwide and more prevalent day by day;

Bearing the collaboration between nations on the addressing of the drug trafficking results in the solution of an ongoing threat that has only grown stronger;

Fully aware of the damages that the traffic of drugs that are caused on the global economy and the lives and safety of millions of people;
Recognizing the efforts that the countries of this block have done to mitigate and eliminate the illegal practices of drug trafficking worldwide;

Taking note of the proposals that every country in this committee gave to find a solution to the problem and focusing on the elimination of drug trafficking;

The Economic and Social Council thoroughly debated the possible measurements, seeking for a better society in which the economy is based on honest resource obtaining ways, for the good and sake of the world population and up-coming generations.

Having listened to this introduction and the position of the committee, the delegations propose a set of solutions which promise to make a significant advancement in the fight against drug traffic:

Short term solutions:

1. Approves the reduction of the tariffs from 25% to 10% coming from the United States of America globally so that all involved countries can continue to grow their economy through trade and investment in rural areas, as well as job opportunities and relocation for damaged areas.

1.1 The reduction of tariffs from 25% to 10% aims to improve the international trade as well as giving comfort to the market and aiming to continue with existing free-trade programs such as the "Mexico-United States-Canada Treaty" also known as the "T-MEC", as well as incentivizing the trade with other countries and making investments in security that will help monitor and eliminate future drug trafficking.

2. Considers monitoring the borders through surveillance systems, such as cameras, control centers, and registers that keep track of entering and exiting cargos to prevent the access and the trafficking of drugs between countries of the same continent such as between different continents. Strengthen the borders and promote a strict anti-drug measurement.

2.1 Close one-on-one collaboration with the United Nations Security Council as well as the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to track and monitor progress made.

2.2 Investing on crewed and uncrewed air surveillance, adding surveillance towers, with the aid of drug profiling centers that will aid with investigating the entries and adding security to land and maritime means by implementing submarines, ships and sensors, as well as drug detectors across all ports and borders.

2.3 Affirming the association of forces between close countries like The Federal Republic of Brazil, Jamaica, The Republic of Costa Rica, Portuguese Republic and The Kingdom of Spain so the Economic and Social Council, as an alliance, can share intelligence to eradicate the trafficking of drugs on the pacific ocean that enters European territories.

3. Designates the organization of constant conferences and conventions for youth in schools, public centers, parks, among others, in order to emphasize the risks of drug smuggling and consuming, and its serious consequences in the mental and physical health, along with the dangers of associating with criminal groups.

3.1 By collaborating with famous personalities such as singers, influencers, famous athletes, and even political figures, who are able to motivate and connect to the youth to really have an effect on them, as it is crucial to understand the necessities and ideas of the younger population, by implying a method of lively ads and social media content in order to let young population receive information on anti drug policy on a better connecting way.

3.2 Use said conventions as a way of promoting a permanently open hotline for young people who feel themselves in a position of danger because of drug-related issues, or are concerned about their own mental health, with the possibility of scheduling free psychological advice online sessions in order to prevent them from falling into drug abuse.

Middle term solutions:

1. Encourages the increment of financial support from this committee sponsors for the creation, reactivation and reinforcement of rehabilitation centers, to provide drug users and people affected by the violence of drug-related crimes, and/or find themselves in a position of danger, a safe space and shelter. These rehabilitation centers will be built in strategic points, such as overpopulated and high drug demanding cities.

1.1 This solution promises to generate new honest jobs for recently-rehabilitated people that need to find a way to earn legal resources by allowing them to work in the center as caretakers, janitors, receptionists, among other jobs. In order to emphasize the risks of drug smuggling and consumption, and its serious consequences in the mental and physical health, along with the dangers of associating with illegal crime groups.

1.2 The best strategic points for building rehabilitation centers are developing countries that have no access to economic resources to fulfill this proposal. Such as The United Mexican States, one of the countries with less financial aid from the government on rehabilitation centers.

1.3 The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Portuguese Republic, the United States of America, and the Dominion of Canada will help with the orientation of the programs for new rehabilitation centers. These countries have the best rehabilitation centers in the world and have proven to be able to deal with a delicate situation as it is an addiction, achieving great results in the "Canadian Addiction Center" proving efforts and results being over 70% effective.

2. Expresses its hope on stopping drug production in the delegations by banning and punishing their illegal entry into the countries. Rehabilitation programs located in delegation such as in Canada, and in the Russian Federation.

2.1 Intensify the regulation and supervision of chemistry substances that can be used in the manufacturing of synthetic drugs by making an arduous investigation with help of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to find out where these substances will be directed and what will be the final purpose of these substances.

2.2 Making the government and laboratories regulate and closely supervise the creation of legal drugs. Implement a greater amount of surveillance to make their tracking easier and keep a register of where these legal drugs will go, and how much of these drugs are being transported in order to ensure they end up where they are supposed to.

3. Further invites having zero tolerance to any type of people or association that get involved with drug trafficking such as economical resources laundering, must be done so the percentages of corruption decrease.

Long-term solutions:

1. Further proclaims for the increment of financial support so the creation, reactivation and reinforcement of rehabilitation centers can be enforced, this, to provide opportunities and aid for drug users and people affected by the violence of drug-related crimes, or find themselves in a position that can threaten their personal integrity.

1.1 To generate new, honest jobs for recently-rehabilitated people that need to find a way to earn legal resources by allowing them to work in the center as caretakers, janitors, receptionists, etcetera.

1.2 To prevent new generations from having access to drugs, and consequently avoiding the formation of new drug users.

1.3 This solution will be financially supported by governmental anti-drug organizations such as the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and by the sponsoring countries.

2. Guided by the effects on the global population and their mental and social development, the members of the committee propose:

2.1 Developing and implementing mental health and rehabilitation methods in all involved countries similar to the "Alberta Health Services" or the "Canadian Addiction Center" as their effectiveness and retroactive as well as proactive approach and focus on the mental health services that accompany addicts reintegrate in the society is an ideal exemplar.

2.2 Develop a rehabilitation and detoxification center in affected countries similar to the centers of rehabilitation in Saint Petersburg, which has been efficient in recent years. This program helps rehabilitate drug users and re-integrate them into society.

2.3 Emphasizes collaboration with Non-Governmental Organizations like the World Federation Against Drugs which is dedicated to dealing with the area of demand reduction and drug abuse control and with the support of committees such as Vienna Non-Governmental Organization Committee, destined to link Non Governmental Organizations and agencies involved in setting drugs policy. This can help raise awareness of the consequences of drug use or motivate people to report drug consumption in the country.

2.4 Focusing on prevention and raising awareness to the young population, this initially conveyed an over 70% success rate in their program, as sharing evidence-based methodologies to raise awareness and prevent the risk of substance abuse was remarkably successful.

3. Requests the creation of a global agency that tackles the problem from many sides having offices and soldiers all around the world. This organization would be called "Global Drug Police" and will be financed by the sponsor countries and economic support of other countries around the world affected by these problems.

3.1 The sponsored countries that are going to fund the solution are the following sponsored countries: Dominion of Canada, French Republic, Kingdom of Spain, People's Republic of China, The Russian Federation, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America.

3.2 This Global Agency will act similarly to the United Nations peacekeepers, who are provided by different national armed forces of the United Nations Member States; maintaining close cooperation to work in promoting stability and security.

4. Supports the Program "Latin America, Free of Drugs", which will represent a model of comprehensive and balanced management in the fight against drugs.

4.1 Collaboration with the "Cybersecurity and New Technologies program" from the United Nations Counter-Criminal Group Center for the blocking of drugs selling networks, this would also help prevent any contact between a young person and a drug dealer.

5. Taking into account that multiple countries economy is based on the production of drugs as a type of agriculture:

5.1 Designates the implementation of “Agricultural Transition Programs” destined to support farmers and affected people, giving them opportunities to venture in new markets and the development of employment programs.

5.2 The financial aid must be geared toward these types of people in the form of job opportunities and resources, to transition from illegal agricultural activities to non-illicit crops with a high economic value like pomegranates, pistachios, wheat or other crops assigned depending on the country’s ecosystem.

It is imperative to solve this conflict due to the significant negative consequences it has had. Together, as a committee, the Economic and Social Council is prepared to work this international situation out for current and future generations due to the efforts made by all delegations to arrive at the most realistic solutions, which we as a committee believe are the best for a better world.

The delegations appreciate the time and attention of all delegations, Chair, and High Command.

"The United Nations System is still the best instrument for making the world less fragile."
- Carlos Azeglio Ciampi

WHAT THE UNITED NATIONS CAN DO

- To use their economic resources and budget to acquire resources, equipment, and pay to workers to run programs around the world.
- To use their economic resources and personnel to investigate problems and conditions in the world in order to offer solutions.
- The UN has negotiators and conciliators who can be sent to conflict areas to try to prevent violence or to attempt to restore peace after a conflict has occurred.
- To call nations or groups to discuss their conflicts and call an external nation as a mediator, if the nations in conflict agree.
- To convene forums or congresses to solve special problems.
- To create sub-bodies to assume primary responsibility for the progress on one or more topics.
- Sending Blue Helmets (United Nations Armed Forces) to conflict areas.
- To carry out economic sanctions when a nation does not respect international agreements, or seek to not respect the rules set by the United Nations.

Note

Each committee is different, for example:

- The Funds may only take action within the use of their economic resources.
- Councils can take more radical and concrete decisions on radical cases.
- It is important to know the committee in which you are participating and to be informed about its faculties.

WHAT THE UNITED NATIONS CAN NOT DO

- To make laws.
- To prohibit or impose conduct on individuals or nations.
- To lead to conflict with any nation, violate the sovereignty of these nations, or to interfere with the right of each government to promote and enforce its own laws.
- To force any nation to impose sanctions on another country.
- To force a nation to comply with the resolutions granted by the United Nations.

WARNINGS

A warning is given for violating the rules of the model. A delegation that receives a warning can not receive the "best delegate" or "outstanding delegate" award. When a second warning is received, the delegation must leave the room for the remaining time of the session, and if three warnings are received, the delegation is expelled from the Model.

A warning is given for the following reasons:

- Disrespecting any participant in the model.
- Receiving multiple corrections from the Chair.
- Use of any type of artificial intelligence.
- Arrive 15 minutes after the session has started.
- Not following the dress code.

Note: These are the most common examples of warnings in the model, nevertheless, there may be different reasons to receive a warning, which are considered by the Chair and organizing team.
